

Oregon's State Health Improvement Plan

Overview: Every five years, the Oregon Health Authority-Public Health Division (PHD) works with partners across the state to create the State Health Improvement Plan (SHIP). As an accredited public health department, PHD is part of the national public health system. To maintain accreditation and to continue its role in the public health system, PHD is responsible for establishing and monitoring a plan to improve the health of people living in Oregon. The State Health Improvement Plan is based on data and focused on science-based strategies to address the leading causes of death, disease, and injury in Oregon.

The SHIP sets forth goals for collective action on key health issues in Oregon. The SHIP is the result of a collaborative planning process with communities across Oregon, focusing on hearing from people who bear a higher burden of poor health outcomes. The 2015-2019 SHIP addresses seven health priorities: tobacco use, obesity, oral health, suicide, immunizations, alcohol and substance use, and communicable disease. PHD has begun the process of developing the 2020-2024 SHIP.

Process: PHD uses the Mobilizing for Action through Planning and Partnerships \(MAPP\) framework to develop Oregon's SHIP. The MAPP framework includes six phases: organizing, vision, assessments, strategic issues, goals/strategies, and action cycle. PHD produced Oregon's State Health Assessment using the first three phases of the MAPP framework, and is developing the 2020-2024 SHIP using the last three phase of MAPP framework.

OHA-PHD will develop the 2020-2024 SHIP with significant input from community partners and members.

- OHA-PHD's steering committee for SHIP, called the PartnerSHIP, includes:
